To whom this may concern:

Community Development International (CDI) – a volunteer-run non-profit 501(c)(3) organization in the State of New York – is seeking your interest in becoming a local partner in our mission to economically empower the rural Haitian community of Seguin.

CDI and local partners have been working in Seguin for multiple years addressing the issues of health & sanitation, education, eco-enterprise, access to clean energy, and environmental protection. As part of our eco-enterprise initiative, we have recently established a relationship with the local womens association Fanm Vanyan.

The women at this cooperative are providing us with a sample batch of 50 hand-made wool hats, which we are expecting to receive during the month of February. The hats are being produced at a cost of $2.50 each (not counting shipping and customs). A tag as per the sample below will be inserted in each product. Below you will also find an image of one of the hats.

It is our goal to provide potential vendors with samples to establish interest in receiving further shipments and selling these hats (and in the future scarves and other similar products) to their customers. The intent is to put money in the pockets of the women involved in the production process, as well as to fund other CDI projects and programs in Seguin. We believe that a suggested sales price of $20 - $25 is appropriate, and a revenue share agreement can be discussed with you depending on your interest.

If you would like to receive some samples or if you have further questions, please feel free to contact us at any time. We hope to establish an appropriate production volume based on your interest and feedback, and to have a range of products available for sale by the end of fall / beginning of winter 2012.

Thank you for your consideration and kind regards.
